Carroll M. Silver, M.D.

From 1946 to 1969, Carroll M. Silver was Chief of Orthopaedics at The Miriam Hospital. In that role, not only did he build one of the dominant orthopaedic forces in Rhode Island, but he gained national recognition for his innovative surgical procedures on temporomandibular joint arthritis, and his highly successful treatments of pediatric orthopaedic problems. He graduated from Columbia with a Bachelor of Science in 1932 and from Rush

Dr. Carroll M. Silver

Medical School at the University of Chicago in 1936. He trained for orthopaedics at the Hospital for Joint Diseases. One of the most distinctive features of his life was his humanitarian efforts on behalf of the third world, teaching and operating in over 20 countries throughout the world.
