

A Mentoring Monday Workshop

MAKE YOURSELF UNDERSTOOD:
WRITING FOR SCIENTISTS

Presenter: Angelika Hofmann, PhD

April 14, 2008: 4 – 5:30pm

Smith Buonanno Hall – Room 106

Learn the importance of effective writing principles:

- Express Your Ideas Clearly
- Write in a Directed Way
- Achieve the Highest Possible Impact

Angelika Hofmann, PhD (UC-Irvine MCB) is a science writer / editor at Yale University and is a well-known expert in demonstrating effective writing techniques for scientists. Her workshops are popular and well regarded by scientists looking to improve their writing. Whether you're preparing your next article, chapter, dissertation or grant proposal, this workshop will be valuable for you.

Registration is requested - please go to:
<http://training.brown.edu/index.php?eventID=2665>

Sponsored by:

The Graduate School ♦ The BioMed Office of Graduate and Postdoctoral Studies ♦ The Office of the Vice President for Research